Dear Educator:

The State Energy Conservation Office (SECO) is pleased to join the Texas Regional Collaboratives in offering you this three-day workshop incorporating some of the best K-12 educational material we have developed over the past twenty-five years.

SECO's educational materials were developed with the educator in mind and as a state agency we offer all educational material whether online, on CD or in print free to all educators. Any of our educational material may be copied by a person acting on behalf or by classroom teachers or students for educational purposes.

We recognize the importance of educating the leaders of tomorrow in the basics and issues of today so they may make informed decisions for an economy that is founded on secure sources of energy. We recognize this challenge and are pleased to support energy education as we all strive to meet the growing challenges that new industry brings to our state.

With regards,
